Lieutenant General James A. Williams, USA
Director, Defense Intelligence Agency
Washington, D.C. 20301

19 DEC 1983

Dear General Williams:

LOG

On November 28, 1983, a National Security Seniors briefing was sponsored by the Intelligence Community Staff in support of the Director of Central Intelligence (DCI). This briefing on computer security represented a first effort to assemble senior policy officials from the Department of Defense and the Intelligence Community to discuss an area of increasing Community concern. Defense Intelligence Agency personnel contributed directly to the success of this briefing by providing outstanding professional graphics production support.

It is with pleasure that I extend to DIA, as a member of the Intelligence Community, my sincere appreciation to [redacted] Deputy Director for Resources and Systems and [redacted] Assistant Deputy Director for Technical Services and Support (RTS) for their support of this Community endeavor. Special thanks is offered to the following individuals in recognition of their technical talents, conscientious dedication, and professionalism: [redacted]
